Hervé Morin

President of the
Normandy Region

Given the COVID-19 pandemic, it was impossible to organise the Normandy World Peace Forum in its original format and on its original dates, just before the commemorations in honour of the Allied landings on 6 June 1944. Nevertheless, it was important to the Normandy Region to continue with this international event which is even more relevant in view of the global pandemic.

The 3rd edition on “Preventing war: responding to new threats” will address the three major areas of risk in today’s world: a breakdown of social ties, environmental issues and the use of new technologies. In addition to these threats, we are living through a pandemic which has accentuated economic and social inequalities around the world and has highlighted the limits of our development model. Public figures will debate these questions. In addition, the Forum will pay tribute to the role of women in peace-building with debates organised in partnership with ELLE magazine and UN Women France.

The Forum’s programme features three major conferences, fifteen debates, two cultural evenings, a Village for Peace with musical entertainment and photography exhibitions, youth events including the European programme Walk the Global Walk, focusing on the UN’s sustainable development projects, and the Freedom Prize award ceremony, where Loujain Al Hathloul will be recognised as the winner of the 3rd edition, and much more.

Initially launched by the Normandy Region, the Normandy World Peace Forum forms a part of the region’s continued efforts over the decades to focus on remembrance, along with many initiatives which have been developed to share these memories and to support new generations as they try to understand the modern world and the peace-building process.

I hope you all enjoy what promises to be an excellent Forum!

ABBAYE AUX DAMES

NORMANDY WORLD PEACE FORUM WELCOMES
YOU TO THE ABBAYE-AUX-DAMES IN CAEN,
THE HEADQUARTERS OF THE NORMANDY REGION.

The-Abbaye-aux-Dames, like the Abbaye-aux-Hommes, headquarters of the City of Caen, was created by Duke Guillaume and his wife Mathilde of the Flanders in the 11th century, making Caen a centrepiece of the duchy of Normandy, a few steps away from a powerful castle. After seven centuries of Benedictine presence, the French Revolution marked a turning point in the history of the Abbaye-aux-Dames.

Having become national property, it was in turn a barracks (1792-1809), a beggar's home (1809-1818), the Hôtel-Dieu (1823-1908) and finally the Saint-Louis hospice until 1984.

The Michel d'Ornano park (1992), which already existed at the time of the abbey, and whose rows of lime trees are listed, is dominated by an imposing Lebanon cedar planted in December 1849.

In choosing to move into these beautiful buildings, which were completely rebuilt in the 18th century, the Normandy Region has reformed a link with one of the finest pages of its history.

OPENING OF THE CONFERENCE

by Hervé Morin, President of the Normandy Region

EVENT HOSTED BY

Frédérique Bedos, founder of the NGO Projet Imagine and François-Xavier Priollaud, Vice-President of the Normandy Region

• REASONS FOR ANGER: THE SOCIAL, DEMOCRATIC AND ENVIRONMENTAL CHALLENGES FACING PEACE

The COVID-19 pandemic, the current environmental crisis and growing inequalities across the planet have created a particularly alarming situation today. This has led to a mistrust of national and international institutions and a feeling of being ignored among swathes of the population, thereby further weakening social ties.

At a time when health, environmental and social issues seem to be more interconnected than ever, the transition to a sustainable and environmentally friendly economy calls our current model into question. Citizens are expressing their anger on every continent, demanding solutions which reflect the scale of these inequalities. Rising violence, tensions surrounding identity and the lure of extremism are all threats to peace, both locally and internationally.

How can we respond to ensure a successful transition towards sustainable development models which will guarantee peace?

• WALK THE GLOBAL WALK, THE MARCH FOR THE CLIMATE

In partnership with Institut international des droits de l'Homme et de la paix

With the participation of Réseau Canopé

Supported by the European Commission and developed in partnership with 13 European countries, the Walk The Global Walk educational programme enables young people to commit to the UN's Sustainable Development Goals.

This year, nearly 1,100 young people from Normandy have worked on SDG 13: measures relating to the fight against climate change, in partnership with the International Institute for Human Rights and Peace (2IDHP). As part of this programme, nearly 400 young people will march for the climate on Thursday 1 October, from Abbaye-aux-Dames to the Presqu'île in Caen. Young people will present decision-makers with their recommendations to ensure that SDG 13 is achieved.

PLENARY CONFERENCE 2

2PM - 5PM | PLENARY HALL

• WOMEN AND PEACE-BUILDING/ELLE AT THE NORMANDY WORLD PEACE FORUM

In partnership with

ELLE

Raising awareness of the little-known challenges which women face during conflicts: that's the reason behind the "Women and peace-building" event, organised in partnership with ELLE magazine.

The first challenge: participation. Too often, women are excluded from talks and are prevented from participating in the process to rebuild their countries. The round-table discussion on "Women: largely absent in negotiations and peace processes" will explore the reasons behind this under-representation and the keys to inclusive negotiations.

The second challenge: the heavy price which women pay in armed conflicts. The second round-table discussion, "Sexual violence: the forgotten war crime", will focus on rape in wartime. How can we fight against this scourge? How can we put an end to impunity and the taboo which surrounds this crime?

The third challenge: women's rights. The third round-table discussion, "Female leadership to safeguard peace", is intended to provide hope. Education, human rights: women's causes and peace are closely intertwined. Climate change, in particular, undermines both peace and equality.

ELLE's editorial staff will spend the afternoon in the plenary hall where they will welcome several guests and focus on these three subjects. This session, which is one of the Forum's key events, will bring together public figures and will close with a speech by Barbara Hendricks, a UN Goodwill Ambassador.

• DEBATE 1 | AUDITORIUM THE EU ON THE INTERNATIONAL SCENE: WHAT RESULTS?

In partnership with the European Parliament

Founded to secure lasting peace, the European Union works with other countries to encourage development and to ensure conflict resolution. While member states' positions may differ, joint diplomatic efforts continue. During the COVID-19 crisis, ambitious recovery plans were established after considerable time, including plans to help other countries to tackle the pandemic. What record does the EU have when it comes to helping other countries in times of crisis?

• DEBATE 2 | SALLE GUILLAUME WATER DIPLOMACY: SHARING BLUE GOLD

Freshwater is a vital resource; its unequal distribution can be a source of innumerable conflicts. The monopolisation of waterways shared by several countries, climate change, demographic pressures and pollution are potential destabilising factors when it comes to water supply. In addition to these geopolitical risks, there are also health considerations: access to clean water is vital for human health. How can we develop water diplomacy to bring countries together and to ensure peace?

• DEBATE 3 | SALLE OR AFTER THE PANDEMIC: THE POST-COVID-19 WORLD?

In partnership with Le Monde

The COVID-19 pandemic has been marked by displays of solidarity and a genuine commitment to the common good while also highlighting the fragility and the inconsistencies of our societal models. The aftermath of this crisis is sure to see social, economic and geopolitical upheavals. What will the world look like after the pandemic? What lessons can be learned from the crisis? Will a new societal model emerge or is society already preparing to go back to “business as usual”?

› Moderator:

- Marc Sémo, , journalist, Le Monde

› Speakers:

- Nicole Gnesotto, professor at CNAM, holder of the European Chair, vice-president of the Institut Jacques Delors

- Bruno Tertrais, deputy director, the Foundation for Strategic Research

• DEBATE 4 | SALLE AZUR RESTORING TRUST?

In partnership with the Tocqueville Foundation

In many countries, political, scientific and media institutions face growing mistrust, driven by “fake news” and by genuine corruption and conflicts of interest. This loss of trust is a major issue when it comes to managing crisis situations, such as the global pandemic which we are currently experiencing. Doubts with regard to the legitimacy or the effectiveness of the measures which have been taken are likely to exacerbate the effects of the pandemic. How can trust be restored and how can dialogue be ensured?

› Moderator:

- Françoise Mélonio, professor emeritus in

French literature, Sorbonne University

› Speakers:

- Arthur Goldhammer, writer, translator, essayist, Senior Affiliate of the Center for European Studies, Harvard University
- Pascal Perrineau, political scientist and professor at Sciences Po, former director of CEVIPOF
- Marc Van Der Woude, President of the General Court of the European Union

• DEBATE 5 | SALLE NACRE
AMAZONIA: A GLOBAL ISSUE

In partnership with the Normandy Chair for Peace

As the lungs of the planet, the Amazon is at the centre of a range of divergent interests. Although this vast and unspoiled area is crucial to the future of mankind, it is also seen as being of economic benefit by several countries, including Jair Bolsonaro's Brazil; he has called for his country's sovereignty to be respected. What solutions can environmental law and international organisations provide to protect this unique resource? What role can indigenous populations play in these discussions?

› Moderator:

- Gert Peter Bruch, president of Planet Amazon

› Speakers:

- Céline Cousteau, environmental activist and documentary filmmaker
- Emilie Gaillard, senior lecturer in private law, general co-ordinator of the Normandy Chair for Peace

PLENARY CONFERENCE 3

9.30AM - 12.30PM | PLENARY HALL

INTRODUCTION:

Frédérique Bedos, founder of the NGO Projet Imagine and François-Xavier Priollaud, vice-president of the Normandy Region

• TECHNOLOGICAL REVOLUTIONS: FOR BETTER OR FOR WAR?

In our interconnected world, new technologies permeate our everyday lives and have an impact on multiple sectors within society. The management of Big Data, the use of artificial intelligence and the rise of facial recognition make it imperative to reflect on how these new processes are used and managed and to consider how the abuse of these technologies could cause significant instability, even in democratic countries. With the roll-out of killer robots and smart weapons and the expansion of surveillance, new forms of military intervention and confrontation are emerging.

These technological revolutions, which can be a source of concern, are also incredible drivers of innovation and are bringing about profound and wide-ranging changes, some of which are for the better. As we see with Green Tech and Tech for Good, these technologies help to support the ecological transition and provide tangible solutions to contemporary problems. As we reflect on what our world will be like tomorrow, will technological revolutions be for better or for war?

DEBATES

2.30PM - 4PM

• DEBATE 6 | AUDITORIUM ETHIOPIA, A GLIMMER OF HOPE FOR AFRICA?

The 2019 Nobel Peace Prize was given to the Ethiopian Prime Minister Abiy Ahmed for his work to promote peace between Eritrea and Ethiopia, two countries which have been in almost constant conflict since the end of the Second World War. One year after this controversial choice, peace remains uncertain and tensions are mounting within the country. In view of national and pan-African challenges, does Ethiopia still provide us with a glimmer of hope, as the UN Secretary-General once said?

• DEBATE 7 | SALLE GUILLAUME WHICH FUTURE FOR MULTILATERALISM AND THE UN?

In partnership with the International Peace Institute

A global health crisis, a climate emergency, new nuclear threats: the 21st century's security challenges emphasise the importance of co-ordinated global solutions. 75 years after the founding of the United Nations, its limitations in terms of what it can achieve and how it works are increasingly obvious. What future is there for multilateralism? Is the UN the right tool? Should we consider a new way to promote international co-operation?

• DEBATE 8 | SALLE OR FREEDOM IN A TIME OF CRISIS

In partnership with the WARM Foundation

In the entire history of many modern countries, freedom has never been as limited as it has been during the COVID-19 pandemic. Although the majority of citizens accept the legitimacy of these restrictions, the pandemic poses a significant threat to the freedom of individuals and the press. In addition to being exploited for political purposes, the fear of the pandemic could have a long-term impact on fundamental freedoms, both in authoritarian regimes and in major democracies.

• DEBATE 9 | SALLE AZUR ASIAN DYNAMICS IN A TIME OF CRISIS

In partnership with the Asia Centre

Asian countries including China, South Korea, Vietnam and Japan simultaneously raised questions and provided solutions during the COVID-19 pandemic. While geopolitical and trade crises seemed to have been suspended because of the pandemic, tensions in East Asia have already resumed. In the aftermath of this crisis, how will the geopolitical and economic relations of the major Asian powers be affected and what role do they intend to play in the post-COVID world?

• DEBATE 10 | SALLE NACRE GLOBAL CHALLENGES, LOCAL RESPONSES: WHAT SOLUTIONS FOR THE CLIMATE?

In partnership with the Assembly of European Regions

Despite the link between climate change and international stability, countries seem unable to take significant steps to curb global warming. Local authorities are often the driving force behind proactive initiatives which aim to find local solutions to this global challenge. Can these initiatives provide a solution to a global problem?

DEBATES

4.30PM - 6PM

• DEBATE 11 | AUDITORIUM THE SAHEL: REGIONAL INITIATIVES FOR PEACE AND SECURITY

In partnership with the Institut Prospective et Sécurité en Europe

Most of the crises in Africa form part of a regional dynamic. This is the case of the Sahel-Saharan region which has become significantly more violent in the last decade. This is evidenced by the resurgence of terrorism, inter-community clashes and crime caused by drug trafficking. Health crises also represent large-scale challenges. How can states, sub-regional organisations and the African Union co-operate on security issues? How effective is this at regional and continental levels?

› Moderator:

• DEBATE 12 | SALLE GUILLAUME WHAT IS AN ALLIANCE WORTH TODAY?

The COVID-19 pandemic will deeply disrupt international relations. Internationally, this crisis has produced far more protectionist reactions than global solidarity. A pragmatic approach, driven by economic and strategic interests, seems to have taken precedence over shared values and shared security. However, co-operation is essential to prevent future threats. In view of consistently changing and short-term considerations, has COVID-19 put an end to international alliances as we know them?

THE MIDDLE EAST: REBUILDING IN UNCERTAIN TIMES

In partnership with the United Nations Development Programme

Having been witness to several decades of conflict, the Middle East is facing a major challenge as it works to rebuild itself during this period of crisis and uncertainty. With

How can they be helped to rebuild?
